

Daily Mail

.com

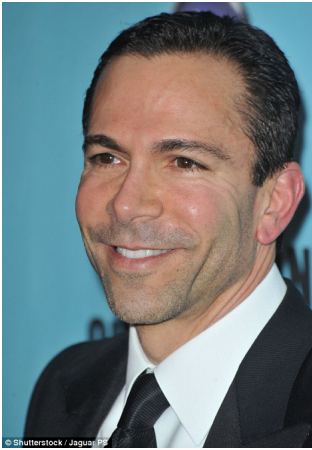

Kendall Jenner's hangout bar, Emma Stone's beloved salon and Jennifer Aniston's hiking spot: How to ditch the tourist traps and explore LA like a local A-Lister

Annabel Fenwick | November 13, 2016

Los Angeles, home of Universal studios, the Hollywood walk of fame... about as touristy a place as you can get.

But for the famed inhabitants who make it such a lurid attraction, it's just home, and when I spent the best part of a year travelling back and forth from there for work, I wanted to dive behind the scenes and join them.

From the closely guarded rooftop hotspots and tucked away beauty gurus, to the boutique beach hotels and the legendary Chateau Marmont - I sampled more than 30 establishments in my quest to ditch the tourist status and borrow the life of a well-heeled local.

Dr. Bill Dorfman Cosmetic Dentistry

Where? 2080 Century Park E, #1601.

Who goes? Jessica Simpson, Eva Longoria.

Why? Dr Dorfman is Hollywood's number one guy for blindingly white, rail-straight teeth. I was treated to a whitening session using the ZOOM! technique, which if you have sensitive teeth like me, hurts like the fiery pits of hell. Fortunately - and you don't get this in the UK - Dr Dorfman was very generous with the aesthetic injections. The downside? I didn't regain the power of non-slurred speech for six hours. The upside? No pain, and shockingly white teeth.

How much: $450-$650 for Zoom whitening.

<http://www.dailymail.co.uk/travel/travelreviews/article-3364437/Kendall-Jenner-s-hangout-bar-Emma-Stones-beloved-salon-Jennifer-Aniston-s-hiking-spot-ditch-tourist-traps-explore-LA-like-local-Lister.html>

If it's electric-white, dead-straight teeth you're looking for, trust in cosmetic dentist Dr Dorfman (left) who counts clients including Eva Longoria (right) and who is thankfully very generous with the anesthetic